

Leading Culture Change

As sustainability continues to centre itself as a social and business priority, sustainability professionals rise to the challenge of preparing, navigating and leading the paradigm shift.

Sustainability Professionals are those leading the change.

Businesses and organisations are evolving. They understand the importance of sustainability but in order to see it in action they require leaders to implement the change.

Why this course?

Leading Culture Change is a two-day course comprising two facilitated sessions led by expert infrastructure culture change and reform consultant, Clare Gardiner-Barnes.

Exploring a suite of digital resources, e-learning, change management principles, and case studies, participants will learn how to apply principles and tools to facilitate a culture change in their organisation, resulting in a collective drive towards positive sustainability outcomes.

Learn to lead cultural change in your organisation by fostering a culture of conversation, collaboration, and innovation. Bring along real-world barriers and develop a personalised plan with actionable steps to drive culture change in your organisation. Lead without authority and influence up, down and sideways across your career.
